Longsheng, home to some of the most spectacular terraced rice patties in all of China. The highlight and perhaps most famous of all is Longji Rice Terraces which translates into the "Dragon's Backbone". When you stand on the top of the dragon and look down on the fields below you can clearly see the dragon's backbone twisting off into the distance. An image not soon to be forgotten and a testament to the Chinese farmer.

From nature to culture as you head from Longsheng into Pingan Village. Pingan is home of Zhuang Minority and the Zhuang Minority still keeps their traditional dress and language to this day. You will find that the Zhuang people are very different from Han Chinese.

Drive to Sanjing to visit Chengyang Wind and Rain Bridge. This unique footbridge is a combination of several Chinese architectural elements all fused into one. It is traditionally explained as painting, bridge, corridor, veranda, and Chinese pavilion, all in one; confused yet? It is unique! New by Chinese standards having only been built-in 1916. Made of stone, wood and tile, a great sample of old-fashioned construction in old China.

Next head to the Mapang Drum Tower, of all the remaining drum towers of the Dong People this maintains the highest importance. It is located within the countryside near its namesake Mapang Village. Sadly the original Mapang Drum Tower built during the Qing Dynasty has been damaged but due to its' importance has been rebuilt, most recently in 1943.

In the afternoon, drive about 3.5 hours to Zhaoxing. Here you will visit the Tang'an Dong Village, located about 6 km. (4 mi.) east of Zhaoxing, which was completed during the Qing Dynasty. It is different from the other Dong Villages you will have experienced so far. The difference will be highlighted by your guide but perhaps better seen with your own eyes from an aerial view showing the different roof shapes as each structure is different. Overnight at Zhaoxing.

Day 06 :

Zhaoxing and Congjiang Village Tours

Visit one of the oldest villages in Guizhou to start your day off Zhaoxing Dong Village is not only one of the oldest but also one of the largest villages. As an important Dong Village, it supports more 800 households and over 4,000 inhabitants. Residents here still practice their ancestors' traditional culture by living in a traditional house, wearing home-made clothes along with singing and dancing just as their parents' parents have done for centuries.

After the visiting of Dong Village, drive about 1.5 hours to Congjiang, where you will visit the Basha Miao Minority Village. The Basha Miao Village keeps the full style of Miao culture that flourished during the Ming or Qing Dynasties. A stop here will help transport you back a few hundred years into a time and place that once was. When ready you will set off for a 2-hour driving to Rongjiang, where you will overnight.

Day 07 :

Dali Dong - Leishan - Kaili Village Tours

Travel to Dali Dong People's village after breakfast which is 23 km. (14 mi.) from Rongjiang. Here you will notice the Dong drum tower rising majestically out of a sea of tiled roofs below in the valley. You cannot take enough photos to record this unique piece of scenery.

After, you will arrive at Leishan comfortably traveling for about 2 hours in your private car. Once settled you will view two interesting and contrasting Villages. The first being - Datang Short Skirt Village and the second Langde Long Skirt Village. Just as the names imply, women and girls wear mini-skirt in Datang Village all around the years and long skirt in Langde Village all the seasons. Both villages are part of the Miao Minority group. All their clothing is extremely beautiful and attractive. Then drive about 2 hours to reach Kaili where you will rest for the night.

Day 08 :

Kaili City Tour - Transfer to Guiyang

Kaili is the capital city of Qiandongnan Miao and Dong Autonomous Prefecture. In the morning, you will visit the Shiqiao Miao Village and learn the traditional way of making paper. Kaili is the largest paper-making site within China. They have the most complete and traditional paper-making process. All the steps are well preserved and allow you to learn about a technology that helped change the entire world

After concluding your time at the papermaking, you will visit a village full of tradition where roads are still made from bluestone, home is on wooden stilts and the Miao Minority Group residents dress in their traditional clothing with pure silver headdresses. The name, for those keeping track, is the Qingman Long Skirt Miao Minority Village, it is filled with hundreds of years' history, just waiting for your arrival.

The next stop is far from the Miao Villages as you head into Guiyang. The capital city of Guizhou Province.
